The United Service Organizations Drive

It Should Meet a 100 Per Cent Response

Most important single factor in maintaining public morale on the Home Front when a country is faced with a military emergency is the ability to assure these folks back home that their boys in the Army camps are being looked after in leisure hours when Army discipline is relaxed. It is to this high purpose that the United Service Organizations drive for donations Wednesday and Thursday is dedicated — and it goes without saying that Hempstead county should go over the top promptly for its quota of $760.

Knox Demands Speedup of Ship Building

Says Combination Warships, Planes Means Victory to U. S., British

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Knox Tuesday demanded a production "miracle" of the nation's shipbuilding industry in order to assure the United States and Britain of command of the seas.

"There can no longer be any doubt," he said, "that this war will be determined by two things—no one thing—a successful combination of sea and air power."

Speaking to a conference of shipbuilders Knox said it was up to them to see the United States and Britain have the warship half of the combination for victory.

He suggested the miracle could be accomplished by increasing the efficiency of labor in shipyards since all are now on schedule to do all of the work that is capable of doing.

"There is no criticism of the work to date," he said. "It has been well done."

"But it is not enough. We must do more. We must have something more than an honest day's work. We must have spirit and the kind of zeal that animates men when they go into battle."

To make steps toward such a high level Knox proposed a system of government-financed competition, to be worked out between the shipyards, the government, and the shipbuilders.

The conference was called especially for the presentation of the plan.

Kiwanis Head Addresses Club

Fred Moore, Pine Bluff, Speaks Here Tuesday

Fred Moore of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, who is Lieutenant-Governor of the 7th district of the Arkansas division of Kiwanis International, was the principal speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Hope Kiwanis club held Tuesday at Hotel Barlow.

The regular program planned for the weekly meeting with Van Hayes, Hope attorney, as speaker was postponed to give way to the official visitor and will be presented on Thursday night of next week at which time the club will hold its quarterly "Ladies Night" meeting.

Mr. Moore told the club that Kiwanis pays dividends both to the individuals who are members and to the community in which a club is located.

"A real Kiwanis club such as you have here in Hope is not just another civic organization," he said. "It is an assembly of men who have the good of their town and state at heart and that can accomplish things of unusual and exceptional merit."

The Lieutenant-Governor urged the local club to send one or more of its members to the twenty-fifth annual convention of Kiwanis International which will be held in Atlanta, Georgia, June 15 to 19.

Merchants to Hear Promotion Plan Thursday

DeQueen Auction Day to Be Explained Thursday at City Hall

All merchants are invited to a meeting at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night in Hope city hall under the auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at which time the Farmer Auction and Trades Day employed continuously by DeQueen ever since 1927 will be explained to the local stores.

Vincent Foster, president of the Junior C. of C., in announcing the meeting of merchants Thursday said the local organization would attempt to get the DeQueen plan into effect here in July.

Mr. Foster announced appointment of Geo. W. Robison as chairman of the Junior C. of C. trade promotion committee, and A. E. Stonequist as vice-chairman.

The DeQueen Auction and Trades Day is held the first Monday of every month. The merchants organize an operating group, or Ad Club, which collects monthly dues from the stores and handles all arrangements and pays all bills. Dues started off at DeQueen at $4 a month.

The merchants committee hires an auctioneer, and the first Monday of every month the farmers bring in any livestock and it is auctioned off on the sidewalk at some vacant lot.

A DeQueen committee went to DeQueen Monday and saw the June Auction Day event. Old stoves, bedstead, gas-line-engines and similar household articles and farm equipment were auctioned off beginning at 10:30 a. m. and continuing until the last article had been disposed of, usually 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Texarkana Gets Huge Warplant

45-Million-Dollar Shell-Loading Factory There

WASHINGTON — A $45,500,000 shell loading plant was assigned to Texarkana, Tex.

The War Department explained that the cost estimate included purchase of land, construction of buildings, building installations, machinery and equipment.

West of Texarkana
The shell-loading plant will occupy 20,000 acres and be located in the vicinity of Leary and Hooks in Bowie county, Texas, approximately 10 miles west of the city.

At least 15,000 persons, of whom 40 per cent will be women, will be employed. They will work an around-the-clock schedule.

The pay roll from the munitions plant will total at least $250,000 weekly.

Caliber of shells to be handled at the plant will be 20, 37 and 55 millimeter. Value of the annual output will run into the millions.

Plans call for production of 100,000 shells daily and arrangements have been made to have 60 loaded cars shipped from the plant each day.

The late Senator Morris Sheppard started the movement to secure the huge plant for his home town. Following his death Senator Tom Connally and Representative Wright Patman, the latter also from Texarkana, continued the effort.

Henry Humphrey, editor of the Texarkana Gazette, Robert Maxwell, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, L. C. Cargile, president of the National Association of Automobile Dealers and M. E. Melton, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, are active in the project.

British Losses at Sea High

Nazis Say 746,000 Tons Destroyed in May

BERLIN —(AP)— The German navy and airforce destroyed 746,000 tons of British shipping in May, the Nazi high command announced Tuesday.

Of this total, the communiques said, 479,000 tons was accounted for by submarines; 215,000 tons by the Luftwaffe, and the remainder by surface craft.

(The figure approaches the 852,000 tons of Allied shipping in Britain's most critical month of the World War, April, 1918. During that month 111 German U-boats sank 430 ships.)

The high command said that Monday five ships totaling 21,100 tons were sunk and five more damaged in a raid off the British east coast. In addition it said long-range bombers scored hits on larger merchantmen west of Faeroes while others bombed ships in the mouth of the Humber river by day.

Cotton Stamp Plan Discussed

Supplementary Program Designed for Farmers Only

LITTLE ROCK — A state-wide educational program on the use of cotton stamps received through the supplementary cotton program will be planned at a meeting of representatives of agricultural agencies, and of merchants and bankers' associations being held at the Federal building this Tuesday, H. E. Thompson, assistant extension director, said.

Details of the operation of the program from the standpoint of the ultimate benefits accruing to the farm families and of the participation of the cotton trade will be discussed at the meeting, Mr. Thompson said.

Purpose of the supplementary cotton program, inaugurated this spring by the United States Department of Agriculture, is to improve living standards of cotton-growing families, to increase the domestic consumption of cotton and to improve the diet and health of farm families.

Arkansas' share of the $25,000,000,000 worth of cotton stamps set aside for the program is $2,000,000. The program also provides that all families on a farm qualifying for cotton stamps may earn a Triple-A payment of $3 for growing and conserving foods for home use over and above their usual food production.

Old Dog Really Is Best Kind to Teach New Tricks

By TOM WOLF
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
That old saw about it being impossible to teach an old dog new tricks is all wet.

An old dog is the best kind to teach new tricks.

You have this from C. J. Tryon, who has probably trained more pooches than any other man in show business.

"Dogs are like children," says Tryon, on the human component of the "Hector & Pals" vaudeville act.

"Youngsters can be taught many things, but they learn more quickly when old enough to understand what they are doing."

"There are," points out Tryon, "four things every dog should learn exclusive of tricks. He must be housebroken. He must come when called, sit at command. He should be taught to heel."

Six Months Is Average Age for Housebreaking
"A definite age cannot be set as the proper one to start housebreaking a dog, but six months is a good average. Take the dog out a lot, particularly after meals. Compliment and pat him."

Teaching a dog to answer a call, Tryon ties a string to his collar, stands away from the dog and pulls gently on the string when he calls him.

Teaching a dog to sit, he pushes him gently into a sitting position when he orders him down.

Tryon believes dogs understand words, that they think and reason. But they must be shown several times before they catch on.

Most important of all, especially for city people, is teaching a dog to heel.

"Walk with your dog on a very short lead, keeping him at your heel," advises Tryon. "Keep telling him to heel. When he's in the right position, encourage and compliment him. A dog should be made to heel every time you cross the street. At the far side he should be made to sit for a moment. Otherwise he'll start anticipating a romp when he reaches the far curb, and he'll run before he reaches it."

Breeds Are Adapted Naturally to Tricks
After dogs have learned the basic rules of canine etiquette, training depends on the breed. Tryon doesn't consider any breed smarter than another, but each is adapted naturally to special tricks. Bird dogs, for example, easily learn to retrieve, pose and sit. They're not adapted to somersaults or walking on their hind legs—at which terriers excel.

How should a recalcitrant pup be punished?
"That," explains Tryon, "depends on the individual dog. A timid dog would be cowed by a slap—on the nose or rump."

"Never hit a dog over the ears or eyes."
"Never hit a dog when you're training him. If you do, he'll associate your words with the blow and stop listening to you."

"For the same reason, don't feed a dog every time he carries out a command. If you do, he'll be thinking of the food and not listening."
Mutts Are Not Smarter Than Thoroughbred Dogs
Tryon does not believe the popular adage that mutts are smarter than

Vichy Prepares for British Syria Attack

German Aid Certain as French Cabinet Meet Twice Tuesday

LONDON —(AP)— Eagerly awaiting word that Britain had taken steps to beat the Germans into Syria, qualified observers Tuesday suggested that the current wall of British silence was a significant sign.

The British Middle East Headquarters announced only "no changes" on all fronts, and the RAF omitted mention of operations in that area.

The possibility that a British move into Syria had already started, observers said, was the fact that silence in the past almost always meant something big in progress.

Authorized sources replied "no confirmation" to Turkish and other reports that German troops were already moving into Syria.

It was recalled that Secretary Eden recently told parliament that the Middle East command had been given full authority to take necessary steps to prevent Germany from any foothold that would menace the Suez Canal.

Implications were clear that action might already be in progress and qualified observers predicted the cabinet might soon declare Syria to be enemy occupied territory.

By the Associated Press
France applied for the veto of plunging into the war against her one-time ally Great Britain—presumably with strong German support—on a new battlefield in French-held Syria.

In Vichy Chief of State Marshall Petain called an urgent cabinet meeting, the second of the day, after conferring with Gen. Weygand, commander of the French forces in Africa.

In Paris the populace was warned to be ready for practice of an air raid alert Wednesday—the first since Hitler's legions swept into the old French capital.

British to Attack Spain

VICHY —(AP)— The Beirut French-controlled radio said Tuesday the British were preparing an attack on Syria as the French government held a long meeting on what was reported to be tense relations between France and her one-time ally, Britain.

The report said French forces were ready to defend its territory and "we know how to reply effectively."

The radio denied a New York broadcast that German units had landed at Latakia, in Syria, and a British report that a hospital ship which landed at Beirut had 500 Germans aboard.

The fact that General Maxime Weygand, commander of the French forces in Africa, who is not officially a member of the government, was present, was considered to give the conference added significance.

General Weygand arrived from Africa unexpectedly Monday, saw Marshal Petain, and is expected to confer Tuesday with Admiral Jean Darlan.

While the cabinet was meeting it was reported in Vichy that Pierre Laval, former Vice-premier and chief of state, was likely to make a private visit this week-end to his castle here.

Camouflaging Shadows in the Snow
AP Feature Service
FAIRBANKS, Alaska—How to camouflage a shadow is one of the major problems of the 90 "sourdoughs" assigned here the past winter to see how Uncle Sam's national defense weapons perform in sub-Arctic cold.
Colonel Landreth is president of the experimental board for the Alaska Defense Command, and his 15 officers and 75 men, transferred from Fort Richardson at Anchorage, seek to insure a hot reception for any enemy when the thermometer says 60-below-zero.
Hiding troops and equipment from invading airplanes is one of the major problems. Test flights have disclosed that painting objects white makes them invisible in the snow—but their shadows remain a dead give-away. So Colonel Landreth and his sourdough soldiers have been charged with the task of overcoming shadows.
Effects of sub-zero temperatures on the lubrication of anti-tank, anti-aircraft, field guns and small arms, and on the trajectories, speed and hitting power, also are being determined by firing tests on 50 square miles of "open air laboratory" adjacent to Ladd Field.

Investigation of Complaints
Federal Bureau Looks After Fifth Column Activity
By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—First assignment of the Federal Bureau of Investigation under the national defense program was the investigation of every complaint of fifth-column activity and the business of searching out possible sabotage needles in 12,000 national defense plant haystacks.
Normal-time police organization could have been handed such an order with any expectation of its being filled. But FBI Director John Edgar Hoover expects to fill it because of the "FBI Law Enforcement Officers Mobilization Plan For National Defense."
In the quarterly conferences that 54 FBI agents-in-charge hold with thousands of police officials everything that the FBI knows about national defense protection is handed on to police of the cities and the grass roots.
This isn't second-hand knowledge either. Recently two FBI agents returned from several months of intensive study of police methods in London. One invaluable thing they brought back was a movie entitled "War and Order" which shows police at work.
Everything that British police know about sabotage, espionage and fifth column activity has been made available. Out of that has come the program of sectional conferences in which nearly 4,300 police agencies are schooled in defense police work. There is no better way to describe it than to give a sample FBI quarterly conference program.
There are: "Instructions on counter espionage"; "Handling sabotage violations"; "How to handle bombs and explosives"; "Citizens' cooperation in national defense police work"; "British methods as demonstrated by lantern slides and the movie 'War and Order'."
Methods of sabotage agents are explained in detail. Vulnerable points, hazards, personnel, physical properties, confidential documents (war secrets), fire prevention, guard force and identification system of defense industrial plant are given a thorough combing.
To pick out one example, an FBI technical laboratory expert displays an innocent appearing pencil. It has lead that will write, an eraser that will erase. While he is writing with it to demonstrate its apparent harmlessness, the expert explains that inside the pencil is a capsule of incendiary powder flanked by a tinier capsule of acid. When this acid eats through to the powder—combustion, and perhaps a defense plant fire. The FBI man explains how this little gadget can be carried aboard cargo vessels, dropped into coal bunkers or planted must anywhere on shipboard.
This is only one of the countless theoretical cases the FBI conferences go into.
What happened recently in the national round-up of aliens is an example. FBI agents, numerically, couldn't have begun to handle even these few hundred. They hardly appeared among the arresting officers at all.
But for the all-out mobilization plan, it was no trick whatever. Police departments moved as a unit from New York to San Francisco. A few years ago, such a cooperative police plan would have been unheard of.
In the World war, it was just a dream. And this was no more than a test case. The department of justice and its "Law Enforcement Plan" may

To Landscape Dream Highway
Two Million to Be Spent on Pennsylvania Road
The nation's largest roadside garden is being planted along the 100-mile stretch of America's Dream Highway between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg at a cost of more than $2,600,000, it was revealed Tuesday by officials of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission. The Commission's gardeners will set out 100,000 trees, 1,250,000 shrubs, 1,750,000 vines, 50,000 perennials, 40,000 annuals, 100,000 bulbs, thousands of reforestation trees, twenty tons of grass seed and 1,000 tons of fertilizer. The material, twenty tons of grass seed and 1,000 tons of fertilizer. The materials have been raised in state nurseries.
This unusual planting is being made in conformity with the Commission's desire to blend the roadway with Pennsylvania's scenic beauty in the area through which this super-highway runs. Even the ten service stations which the Esso Marketers have erected on this highway conform with the Commission's plans, with their early colonial architecture and the landscaping around their grounds.
The landscaping program now under way has the approval both of highway engineers and of highway safety experts. Plantings will effect erosion control and will serve as natural snow fences. They will also screen motorists from the glare of sun and on-coming headlights on curves.
The twenty-four-foot east and west bound lanes of the toll highway are now separated by a ten foot earth strip on which will be planted grass and possibly wild flowers. Turnpike officials have established eight nurseries along the road and tank wagons will keep the highway plants watered. Officials have also reiterated their determination to keep the highway free of unsightly structures and plan to use large evergreens to hide any such structures that may be erected off the right-of-way.
In the future, there, but it has come a long way since the days of our last national emergency. For the first time, it has put policing for national defense on a coast-to-coast basis.

SERIAL STORY

FOOTSTEPS IN THE FOG

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

COPYRIGHT, 1941
NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Deborah Lovett, attending the spring term in a California university, meets a strange young man in the fog. She is charmed by his manner, his Continental accent, his invitation to dinner, but she refuses. At home, her roommate, Angela, accuses her of having met a most interesting man. Deborah admits it, knows she shall see him again, but she seems to hear a warning.

CHAPTER II

ANGELA dropped the subject—to Deborah's immense relief. Somehow she did not want to talk just now about the young man she had met in the fog.

"Well," Angie told her with an air of satisfaction, "it may interest you to know that I, too, have not been idle. I ran over to the university this morning to pick up an outline of Doctor Brooks' Shakespearean seminar, and I stumbled over a lad on the same errand who isn't too hopeless—one Sam Lindstrom, by name. He fancies himself beyond any justification that appears to the naked eye—but he's amusing. Oh, by the way, there's a parcel from home for you, Debby."

As usual, Angela's nimble coral-tipped tongue was darting inconsequently here and there, in happy oblivion of the one-sidedness of the conversation.

"On the desk there," she pointed. "I'll bet dollars to doughnuts it's that old woolen dress you hid so Bridgie wouldn't make you bring it."

Deborah strolled over to the desk.

"I'll go you one better," she laughed, poking the bulky parcel with amused resignation. "It's my bet that Bridgie's put in a pair of hip boots and a kerosene heater for good measure."

When Deborah's widowed mother had died, it was Bridgie

Lanahan, for years the Lovett housekeeper, who had decreed that the old Cape Cod home should be kept open, and that she should remain there as custodian during the rest of Deborah's school days.

Since there was no one to object except Deborah's guardian—who welcomed the plan with obvious relief; and Deborah—who hadn't a Chinaman's chance against Bridgie's naive assumption that she was not only as inalienably a part of Deborah's modest estate as the front door of the house, but also the divinely appointed watch-dog of her health and morals—the house did remain open; and after eight years, Bridgie was still in office.

ON the first day of the special session at the university, Deborah lingered so long over the morning radio broadcast of European news that she barely missed being late for Doctor Brooks' seminar.

Slipping as inconspicuously as possible into the room—for Doctor Brooks had a widely publicized reputation for being temperamental about tardiness—she was conscious at first only of relief that there was an empty chair at the end of the long table nearest the door. Then she realized that beside her a tall young man was on his feet, and clicking his heels together in a precise little foreign bow, was placing the vacant chair for her.

It was only as she was about to sit down that she recognized him. In the bright morning sunshine, he was not quite the shining figure out of some old heroic legend which, for that first moment, the theatrical alchemy of the fog had made him seem the evening before. Yet even now, there was about him a fleeting suggestion of the young Siegfried on a holiday.

"So?" he said softly, while Deborah, mindful of Doctor Brooks' restive glance at his watch, slid her slim length into her chair with as little ostentation as possible. "It is not only the fog that is kind to me. When I go again to England,

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. McFaddin were week-end visitors to Blytheville where Mr. McFaddin delivered the commencement address at the Blytheville high school.

Mrs. Lula Smith spent the week-end with friends and relatives in Dallas and Corsicana, Texas.

"So you've landed our visiting Storm Trooper," Angela said. "It's even rumored that he boasts a title," "I don't believe it," Deborah countered, denation ran from chair to chair about the seminar table. The first time, he glanced about him as if unable to believe that any one could intentionally have been so rude. Later, Deborah noticed that although he always went on with flawless self-possession and good humor, he sometimes crimsoned to the line of his fair hair, and that his eyes were the hurt, bewildered eyes of a snubbed small boy.

She found herself amused, and unexpectedly touched at finding that, for all his cocky little air of knowing that the world was his own particular oyster, he was so vulnerable. Perhaps that was why—although she told herself that it was her Yankee love of fair play—when he asked her again to have dinner with him, she accepted.

WHILE Deborah was dressing for the occasion, Angela perched on the foot of her bed, watching her with amused speculation in her bright black eyes.

"So you've landed our visiting Storm Trooper?" she began as Deborah ran a comb lightly through the amber cloud of curls at the back of her neck.

"Storm Trooper? . . . What on earth are you driving at, Angel?" Deborah asked absently.

"That's what every one's saying." Angie's pointed coral tongue seemed fairly to savor the spice of her titbit. "Oh, well—not exactly a Storm Trooper, perhaps."

"Sam Lindstrom knows some German refugees; and he says they told him the beautiful Stephen is an officer in the German army—one of the bright young men in official circles. It's even rumored that he boasts a title—not to speak of landed estates all over the map of Europe—if Europe can still be said to have a map."

"I don't believe it," Deborah shrugged. "He's just another homesick boy who wants some one to dance with him."

Nevertheless, she went downstairs a little uneasily.

HOLLYWOOD — Behind the screen: The Brothers Warner have thought up something to compete with Bingo, Whammo and free dishes in the stimulation of interest in motion pictures. This idea, though, is strictly cultural: a Library of the Screen, with branches in all the company's theaters.

There will be novels and biographies which already have been filmed and texts and histories on movie-making plus albums of photographs from famous pictures. No announcement has been made regarding source novels such as "What Makes Sammy Run?" and "The Days of the Locust"—whether they'll be omitted or lauded by a special committee from the Hays Office.

Anyway, considering the great amount of excellent and unobjectionable, it seems the Warners are taking a pretty big chance with their

Shed Tears Here
Fritz Lang met a writer whom he hadn't seen in a long time and asked if he'd been seeing anything lately. "Yes," said the free-lancer grimly. "My house and car."

Add sad stories: A talent scout for one of the big studios was fired the other day after two years of frantic but unproductive effort. "Trouble with him," said an executive, "was that he kept looking for young and beautiful girls with 50 years' experience."

Judy Garland is very unhappy about being cast in another Andy Hardy picture. She believes that she and her career have outgrown the role of a Mickey Rooney stooge.

Stories by the Yard
Speaking of stories, more than 19,000 of 'em now have been registered with the Screen Writers Guild, the majority in the past four years. If all those manuscripts were placed end to end, it would be the first time that most of them ever had seen the light of day. . . . Scenarists are having a tough time figuring out new twists for mystery thrillers. In a current whodunit, "The Devil to Pay," the lethal knife is thrown by trick monkey.

'Iron Man' Lou Gehrig Dies

Great Yankee Player Succumbs Monday Night

NEW YORK —(AP)— Lou Gehrig, great first baseman of the New York Yankees for 14 years, died Monday night after two years' illness of a rare disease that everyone except himself believed incurable.

The "Iron Horse" of baseball, who would have been 38 years old June 19, passed away at his home in the presence of his wife after a critical span of only three weeks. He did not lose consciousness until just before death at 9:10 p. m.

The disease which erased Gehrig from the line-up of the Yankees on May 2, 1939, was diagnosed as "amyotrophic lateral sclerosis," a hardening of the spinal cord which caused muscles to shrivel.

Lou Gehrig was synonymous with durability, clean living and clean play in baseball.

During his 16 seasons other players came and went, but he was the "Iron Horse," an institution as unfaltering as time itself.

A pall was cast over the sports world and the fact that his team continued on its orderly course to a fourth consecutive world championship had no effect on the opinion of most fans that his forced retirement ended an historic era in baseball.

He was a holdover from the halcyon days of Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby, Frank Frisch and the other heroes.

He was as much a part of New York as Central park. Born in Manhattan June 19, 1903, he grew up in and with the metropolis. As a high school athlete he attained some prominence and was an all-around sports star at Columbia University. Through out his career he was called "Columbia Lou."

At the age of 20 he left Columbia in 1923 and signed with the Yankees. Except for parts of the 1923 and 1924 seasons when he was sent under option to Hartford in the Eastern League, he never played with any other club.

After his withdrawal from baseball he retained his identity with New York by accepting a position on the city's prison Parole Board.

 In 1931 he made a League record by batting in 184 runs.

Earned about $400,000 during his baseball career.
 Peak salary, in 1938, was $39,000.

In proportion to its size, a fly is stronger than a man.

Vichy Prepares

The Germans had advised Turkey to delay sending a boat to Plerus for the return of the Turkish ambassador to Greece.

Indications that Turkey expected no immediate crisis were seen in the preparations of President Inonu to come to Istanbul for a holiday.

The Ankara radio, commenting on what it said were German claims that Iraqis continued to fight the British, said this was impossible against British mobile units.

Nazis Give Free Hand
 BERLIN —(AP)— Germany will give France a free hand to repel any attempt by England or any other powers on her sovereignty, authorized sources intimated without actually saying so Tuesday.

The question arose in connection with British press demands for the seizure of Syria.

Asked whether Germany could afford to let England take Syria, one source said, "We don't cross our bridges until we come to them."
 "We have the French government's statement that they will defend their territory, and Germany is ready to concede the sacred right and duty of any nation."

Authorized sources declined to throw light on the Hitler-Mussolini conference at Brenner pass Monday.

Nazis Move From Rumania
 ANKARA —(AP)— A dozen freighters flying the swastika have been assigned to carry troops and equipment from Rumanian ports to French Syria, it was reported Tuesday, following the landing of 500 German troops at Latakia last Thursday.

Sailing from the German held port of Constanta, on the Black sea, the ships are expected to stop briefly at Rhodes in the Italian Dodecanese islands and continue by night to Latakia and Tripoli in an effort to break the British blockade.

It was understood that German planes at Rhodes and Appello would undertake to protect the route from the British planes and ships.

German strategy, in view of the British victory in Iraq, was said to establish a solid grip for a possible drive into north Syria, Iraq, Palestine or Cyprus.

Observers said they had seen about 200 German aircraft in the Appello

HIGHLIGHTS FROM LATEST BOOKS

Critics are referring to Jesse Stuart as the Sherwood Anderson of Kentucky, and his latest book, a collection of nostalgic tales of the hills, should rank him with America's leading portrayers of what many consider the purest type of American hillbilly.

In Stuart's "Men of the Mountains" (Dutton: $2.50), you can feel the corn brush across your face, see the lazy smoke curling over pine-crosted ridges, hear the hound-dogs baying through the valleys and smell the clean fresh mountain air after a spring shower.

You'll meet some mighty interesting folks, too. There's old Flem Simpson who spends the hot summer days digging his own grave; Roosevelt Reffitt, head man of the best moon-shining family in those parts; Suits-the-People Jason Mennix, who didn't suit them in this particular campaign, and Grandpa Grayhouse who left all his grandchildren $100 each, so they could dress up in store clothes and have a good time at his funeral.

There's the story of the Sturgins-Hillman feud, which, according to Pa Hillman, started in 1918 "and we fit 'em with the courts until 1928. Then the Supreme Court gave the Sturgins that acre of ground. They've lost nearly all their land paying lawyers to get it, and they ain't got it yet. Powder and lead's cheaper than lawyer's fees and court costs."

The romance of Little Rilda and

Sweet William, "who was too big to fight and too big to plow on the side of the hill," rolls merrily on to a happy conclusion at a basket dinner despite a nose-bloodying fight between the Dingus and Bridgewater boys.

Here is a man who can write. Listen: " . . . a wind that makes one feel like he can get under the edge of a hill and leave the whole hill upside down." . . . "Sweet: flows from his face the color of white soup-buns." . . . "Death is something the young fear and there's nothing the old can do about it." . . . "Clouds raced near the mountain tops like a pack of thin-bellied hounds after a fox." . . . "That boy got a lot of soul-leadin' stuck in his head at college." . . . "The sun is so hot you keep looking for the ashes to drop from the sky." . . . "He was tall like a beanpole with a yowe neck and a little face that had a sharp pointed nose stuck on it like a mud-daubers' nest on an old washpan."

INSIDE OR OUT?

BY NORMAN CHANDLER, CHAIRMAN, NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS COMMITTEE

MONKEYS want security, warmth, peanuts and bananas, companionship—even as you and I.

Monkeys get these things in the zoo—probably to a far greater degree than in their native trees. But they lose their FREEDOM to get them.

Now the great difference between a FREE man and a SLAVE has nothing to do with peanuts or security. The free man keeps his freedom by being able to PROTECT HIMSELF. The slave, or the monkey, gives up his freedom TO GET PROTECTION. Dictators, like zoo keepers, believe it is unnecessary for the INDIVIDUAL to make any decisions.

"The STATE will tell you what you are to do, what you are to believe," says the dictator. "And if you do not do and believe as you are told 'NO PEANUTS!'"

That doesn't sit very well with free men in a democracy. They say:

"WE, the people, will tell you, OUR PUBLIC SERVANTS, what to do and what to believe. Fail us and we'll throw you out of office!"

BUT THEN COMES THIS QUESTION: How are you, the people, to know right from wrong, fact from fancy? How can you watch everywhere at once?

How can you keep your eye on the businessman who runs the national "peanut stand" and still watch the state and local and national government? How can you POSSIBLY know what is going on all about you?

AND HERE IS DEMOCRACY'S ANSWER:

"The answer is easy. We will have free speech, freedom of thought and religion. We will let every man express his own views. We will give to NEWSPAPERS the job of keeping us informed. We will put these rights of ours to KNOW THE FACTS even beyond the reach of our government—beyond temptation.

"And we will KEEP for ourselves the power to get a new zoo keeper or a new mayor or a new senator if any true report comes to us that these or other public SERVANTS threaten to become our MASTERS. No dictatorship can exist in a nation that has a truly FREE press."

Over 300 leading newspaper publishers join together to bring you this weekly message about the function of the press in a free nation. Newspaper Publishers Committee, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York City.
